Homecoming Week

At the MS/HS, special events took place in the week leading up to Homecoming. Each day, students dressed in class colors or in themed clothing. The Spirit Week themes were Class Color Day, Iconic Duo Day, Pajama Day, Throwback Day and School Spirit Day. On Thursday evening, Sept. 21, students participated in the annual Homecoming parade and float competition. Floats designed by students in grades 7-12 were featured, showcasing a decades theme. The seniors won the float competition with their 1920s float. On Friday, Sept. 22, there was a pep rally in the gym, with the classes competing against each other in a hula hoop relay, piggyback races and knock out hoops contest.

On Friday and Saturday, Sept. 22-23, student athletes took the stage, competing against Wilson Magnet in boys' soccer games, Kendall in girls' soccer games and Notre Dame in football. At the Woodlands, the Holley Varsity Boys' Soccer team beat Wilson, 4-0, but the Varsity Girls' Soccer team lost to Kendall, 0-3. The Varsity Football team beat Notre Dame, 47-21.

Our District's Mission

We, the students, parents, staff and community of the Holley Central School District, will work together to provide the opportunity and means for all students to acquire the skills, knowledge and attitudes to become responsible and productive citizens in a diverse and changing society. The ideal is to instill a passion for lifelong learning.

Superintendent's Message: Getting Back to Basics: A Quality Education for All

Many of you have followed the changing education trends relative to curriculum and instruction over the past 10 years. For far too long, the goals and objectives related to both curriculum and instructional practices have, at times, seemed to shift like the wind. Practices such as New Math, Regents Competency Tests, small group instruction, independent learning, grades 3-8 Math and ELA tests, and teacher and principal ratings have impacted our schools in the recent past. I am not passing judgement on the worth of each of these, as I will leave that up to each of you, but what I am advocating for is a return to the basics of educating kids: keeping children and staff safe, learning, and preparing students for the rest of their lives. I truly believe that these basic principles have gotten lost among each attempt to add a new twist to how we educate students.

I also believe that we need to focus on our students' interests beyond high school. A college degree is a great achievement and will, in most cases if applied well, assist any individual in making a positive contribution to his/her world. However, the college pathway is not for everyone. After speaking with the various contractors who have worked on our Capital Project, each and every one of them has told me that there is a serious shortage of men and women in Western New York who possess skills in the specific trades. Electricians, plumbers, carpenters, bricklayers and masons of all sorts are needed to satisfy the demand for these skills on construction jobs. Consequently, students who have a sincere desire to work in the trades should be encouraged to do so. We need to make sure that we are providing those students with every opportunity to become successful.

New York State is well on its way to providing a quality education for every student as the State has adopted the Every Student Succeeds Act, a successor to No Child Left Behind. I mention this because this provides us with yet another opportunity to ensure student success, if we truly take advantage of it. We have a golden opportunity at Holley CSD, in that the time is right to help each student find where they want to be: college, military, the world of work or pursuing the mastery of a trade. Every minute of every day in every class must translate into maximizing our efforts toward the realization of a quality education for all. As long as home and school continue to work together on this, we can truly achieve that goal. One cannot do it without the partnership of the other. Please continue to work with us as we value the partnerships that we have developed with parents and the community-at-large. The best thing that we can do for our students is to become yet another resource for them as they prepare for the rest of their lives!

Accepting Donations for Holley Days of Shopping Event

As you clean out those closets, don't throw away those new and gently used toys, books, games, puzzles, CDs, DVDs, video games, sports items, purses and jewelry suitable for children in Pre-K-grade 12. Instead, donate them to Holley Days of Shopping Event and drop them off at the Elementary Mental Health Office by Dec. 1. Please label them as "holiday donations." The annual Holley Days of Shopping Event held on Dec. 7-8 allows Holley School District families to "shop" for holiday presents for their children.

Please note: we are unable to accept clothing, household or baby items.

Thank you for your support.

Holley Days of Shopping Event

All parents/guardians of Holley Central School District students are invited to "shop" for their children for the holidays on Dec. 7-8. Each parent/guardian will be able to choose a limited number of gifts for each of their children, free of charge. There are no income requirements for this event, but only one parent/guardian is able to shop for each child. This means that the second parent/guardian and other relatives cannot shop for the same child. No prior registration is needed, but we will be verifying they are Holley students at the event.

This event is held on Thursday, Dec. 7 from 11 a.m.-7 p.m. and Friday, Dec. 8 from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Elementary School Primary Gym. Please report to the Elementary School Foyer first. Be prepared for long wait times and plan extra time in your schedule. There will be no babysitting service available, so please make other arrangements for your children.

If you have any questions, contact Kelly Bates, Elementary Social Worker, at 638-6318, extension 2558 or kbates@holleycsd.org.

School Board Recognition Week

New York State Governor Andrew Cuomo proclaimed School Board Recognition Week as Oct. 23-27, 2017. To quote Governor Cuomo's proclamation, "the men and women serving as members of school boards are dedicated to children, learning, and community, and devote many hours of service to elementary and secondary public education as they continually strive for improvement, excellence, and progress in education"; this is an accurate description of the Holley Board of Education. Thank you to the members of the board for all you do to support the Holley community. At the October board meeting, the board members were recognized for their service.

Soaring Award

Pre-K teacher Amie Callen received the "Soaring to New Heights" award at the Holley Board of Education meeting on Oct. 16. This award is given monthly to deserving students and adults who go above and beyond expectations, and lend their skills and abilities to help others. Callen received the Soaring award from Elementary Principal Karri Schiavone for applying for and being awarded a $500 scholarship from Scholastic Books. Callen won $500 worth of classroom books and a $500 scholarship for other classroom items. "Amie has gone above and beyond to supply her children with valuable resources," said Schiavone.

Holley Employees Receive Service Awards

On Sept. 18, Holley faculty and staff members received service pins based on their years of service to the district. Pins were awarded to district employees who had achieved five-year milestones (5 years, 10 years, 15 years, etc.) as of June 30, 2017. District employees were recognized at the Holley Board of Education meeting. Pictured are some of the award recipients, from left, teachers Jolynda Elsenheimer and Sally Martin, teacher's aides Maureen Christian and Heidi Thurley, teacher assistant Tammy Gaylord, teachers Cathy Mason and Tanya Pittinano, and teacher assistant Jennifer Morgan holding their service pins. Additional employees who were recognized: Fred Seeman, Chrystal Gantman, William Silpoch, Tracy Stevens, Janet Voigt, Karen Clark, William Tuttle, Katherine Connor-Ebbs, Samantha Zelent, Gina Cliff, Melinda Miles, Michelle Hatfield, Alexa Downey, Allen Keiffer, Danny Daniels, Christina Langelotti, Sue Morrell, Michael Crissman, Kathy Monks and Venessa Kingdollar.

FIRE PREVENTION AT HOLLEY ELEMENTARY

On Oct. 12, the Holley Fire Department demonstrated to the Pre-K-3 students at Holley Elementary School what to do in case of a fire. The students practiced stop, drop and roll; went through a simulated fire in a safety house and practiced their escape route; watched a fireman put on his protective gear; and learned about the different tools on the fire trucks. The firefighters didn't want the children to be afraid of them in their full gear so they demonstrated what it sounds like talking through a mask and how hard it is to hear with the head gear on. This is the first year that Holley students had a chance to tour the new safety house provided by Orleans County that better simulates a typical house layout.

Students from Holley Middle School/High School also participated in the fire prevention activities. Students in grades 6-12 are eligible to belong to the Youth Fire Group and they work with the Clarendon Fire Company, and Holley and Fancher Hulberton Murray (FHM) Fire Departments. Currently, 11 students in grades 6-12 belong to the group and several have joined the Clarendon Fire Company and Holley Fire Department. The students meet every Monday at the Clarendon Fire Company and receive the same training, with some restrictions, as adult firefighters. They use turn-out gear donated by other fire departments. "There aren't many youth groups like this across the country, but this group has been at Holley for five years," said Clarendon Fire Assistant Chief Bob Freida. To join the Youth Fire Group, contact Chief Freida at cfcchief@rochester.rr.com or call (585) 764-6540.

Firefighters Help Test Out Scientific Method

While local firefighters were teaching fire prevention to elementary students, one student in Lisa Tubinis', Anna LaForce's and Kevin Selbig's Environmental Science class enlisted the firefighters' help with a project he was working on. Student Sebastian Bartholomew was tasked with using the scientific method to prove or disprove claims made about products in TV commercials. He decided to test whether a certain flashlight could withstand being run over by a fire truck and dropped from a great height. Positioning the flashlight under the fire engine's tires, the firefighters drove over the flashlight several times, but the flashlight remained operational. A fireman then took the flashlight with him to the top of the ladder truck and dropped it from a height of 75 feet. The first time, the flashlight held up to the impact with the ground; on the second attempt, the flashlight stopped operating. For these science students, "as seen on TV" takes on new meaning when replicating these product claims.

The Environmental Science class thanks Fire Chief Kevin Dann and the rest of the Holley Fire Department for taking time out of their day to help with this project.

Holley Alum Wins $50K on Food Network Show

by Iva Petrosino, BOCES 2 Communications Support Specialist

When a young Steven Klatt was busy watching The Food Network instead of cartoons, he never imagined he'd grow up to appear on that network. Those days of watching cooking shows as a child would pay off for him as he and his team won the grand prize on the Food Network's food truck cooking competition.

Klatt, a Clarendon native and Class of 2005 Holley High School graduate, had the idea to apply for "The Great Food Truck Race" on The Food Network while he was feeding his infant daughter in the middle of the night. He lives in Charleston, SC, and had been working his way through the ranks of the food and beverage industry for the last 10 years. He pitched his idea to two friends, Nick Hunter and Brandon Lapp, and together, they came up with the idea for a food truck named Braised in the South, aka BITS.

Within a few months, the team was invited to join the cast of the "The Great Food Truck Race." After weeks of tough cooking challenges in various cities across the southeast, Klatt and his BITS partners beat out seven other food truck teams to win the top prize of $50,000. "Being on the show was incredible," Klatt said. "The fact that we were able to take this idea for a food truck and run with it to win this show is just unbelievable. It's exceeded any career expectations I ever had for myself."

Retired Monroe 2-Orleans BOCES (BOCES 2) Teacher Kevin Bedard remembers Klatt

as a standout student during his years in the Culinary Arts program at the Career and Technical Education (CTE) Center. He said he was not surprised to see Klatt do so well on the show each week. "Steve was a teacher's dream; he thrived in both application and theory," said Bedard. "The enthusiasm for competition he had on 'The Great Food Truck Race' reminded me of the same competitive streak he had as a student competing in the New York State Restaurant Association's ProStart Invitational culinary competition."

Klatt said the basics he learned from Chef Bedard and others along the way were crucial to the success he had on the show and in his career so far. "I loved my time at BOCES 2 (CTE)," said Klatt. "Being there gave me an opportunity to learn about what I loved doing – being creative with cooking and entertaining. Chef Bedard was a huge influence and helped me decide to attend culinary school. Nick, Brandon and I are all classically-trained, technique-driven chefs. If you really know the basics of cooking, you can do so much with food and a little bit of creativity."

The Braised in the South food truck is now open for business in the Charleston area. Although he mostly cooks with a southern flair now, Klatt said he keeps trying to incorporate a bit of traditional Rochester cuisine. "I make a garbage plate at work probably about once a month," he said. "I make everyone eat it!"

AMPED Students Experience Teamwork

by Mandy Roth, MS/HS Math Teacher

How do you build a community in your classroom? That has been the question that Business Teacher Jim Di Sessa and Algebra Teacher Mandy Roth have been working on in their Algebra, Manufacturing, Production, Entrepreneurship & Design (AMPED) class this year. Ninth grade students take the algebra skills they've learned in the math classroom and apply them to a business they will run.

Thanks to MS/HS Library Media Specialist Lisa Osur, students had an opportunity to participate in a unique teambuilding experience on Oct. 6 in the MS/HS Library. Each student held a string that was attached to a metal ring in the center of the room. Students worked together to lift a variety of objects off the ground and lower them back down to the floor. This task proved not to be as easy as it sounded.

During the class' debrief, students were asked to make a list of things that led to their success. All of the groups listed communication and leadership. These are the traits that will benefit them in the classroom and beyond.

Ride 4 Life Visits Holley MS/HS

On Oct. 6, a trio of motorcycle riders showed off their gravity-defying stunts in the MS/HS parking lot, entertaining students. The trio, known as the Ride 4 Life team, was there to not only display their colorful, noisy machines, but to deliver a powerful message to students. Lead presenter Scott Caraboolad told students that his goal with the Ride 4 Life team is to help target the drug epidemic in the U.S. and give people the opportunity to seek help. The team, made up of riders Caraboolad, Shane Croxton and Cody Brown, stopped in Holley as part of a three-day visit to Orleans County sponsored by local churches, law enforcement agencies and county health agencies.

Caraboolad shared his story with students, telling them he wished someone had spoken to him like this when he was in high school. "You need to take certain things seriously," he said. When he was 17, he experienced family tragedy. He lost nine family members within a five-year period, starting with his father. "I came from a good family, with no substance abuse issues," he said. "Once death began impacting my life, I didn't properly deal with it. I was in the hate tunnel, full of anger, pride and grief. I had achieved success as a motorcycle stunt rider at a young age, but I didn't have proper mentorship. I started hanging out in the wrong places with the wrong people. I was on that destructive path for the next 20 years." He spoke about his years of drug and alcohol abuse and time spent dealing with legal issues because of his behavior.

In 2011, nearing age 40, Caraboolad was suicidal. "I gave up hope on myself," he said. "I had the American dream – lots of money, a big house, a family – but I was empty inside." After being an atheist for many years, he found salvation in his faith. "I stepped out of the darkness and into the light," he said. "I realized I needed to take responsibility for my actions and figure out my purpose in life. Once I began doing that, good things started happening to me. My family was restored to me. I learned through proper unconditional love – of myself, others, a higher power – there is hope." He also found having a mentor was invaluable to his recovery. He stated that in order to find one, he had to overcome ego and pride. "Reach out if you need help," said Caraboolad. "You will never find a mentor unless you ask for it." He found that these four keys are essential for him to stay in recovery: purpose, love, mentoring and hope.

After the presentation, Holley students posed for selfies on a mounted motorcycle and received autographs from the Ride 4 Life team. Students were visibly moved by the presentation and took a few moments to share their thoughts with the stunt team.

Interact Club Helps with Homecoming Fall Carnival

The Interact Club helped host the first-ever Homecoming Fall Carnival on Sept. 23. They worked hard to set up games and activities for kids, including a football toss and face painting. The event was free to all kids and included a ton of free prizes for each game.

Celebrating Apple Day in Pre-K

by Allison Jaworski, Pre-K Teacher

On Sept. 26, Pre-K students in Allison Jaworski's and Amy Bennage's room had a lot of fun in centers celebrating Johnny Appleseed Day. Students conducted an apple experiment where they taste-tested three different kinds of apples and decided which one they liked best. They talked about apple color, whether the apple was crisp or soft, and if it tasted tart or sweet. At another center, students worked on scissor skills, counting to four, and sequencing one through four using apple pictures. At the independent table center, students made their own apples. To practice their pinch-grip and fine motor skills, they tore red, green and yellow construction paper into small pieces, and glued them onto a plate. After adding a stem and leaf, their apples looked good enough to eat! On the rug, students sorted red, green and yellow apples, represented by soft pom-poms, and used special tweezers to place them high on their trees. When they were done, they counted all their apples.

Pre-K Hosts Grandparents Day

Amie Callen's Pre-K class celebrated Grandparents' Day on Sept. 29 by inviting the students' grandparents to a tea of punch and cookies in the Elementary School Café. Callen and teaching assistant Alexa Downey taught the children songs and dances that they performed for the grandparents. The grandparents sang and danced to one of the songs their grandchildren taught them. The children presented keepsakes to their grandparents, which included a photo, a bookmark with their footprint on it, and a card with their handprint on it. The celebration helped the children complete their classroom unit on families.

Maker Fridays are Back at the MS/HS Library

by Lisa Osur, MS/HS Library Media Specialist

Maker Fridays at the MS/HS Library are off to a great start! They have proven to be a popular activity among students. Monroe 2–Orleans BOCES offers a collection of Maker Kits to component districts to borrow, and Holley CSD has taken advantage of this resource for another school year. This year, we are borrowing the Cubelets and Kano Computer kits, along with a 3-D printer. During the first Maker Friday, students made bottle cap magnets to decorate their lockers. We also hosted a “deconstruction” Maker Friday where students took apart broken equipment to see how things are made. With Cubelets, students created robots that made noise, lit up and moved across the table. Using the Kano Computer kits, students explored how computers are put together, and then they made a real, working computer with the components provided.

Some of our future Maker Fridays will include using Ozobot mini-robots to teach coding, pumpkin decorating, LED wiring to make mini light sabers and so much more! Students really embrace the Maker Fridays and are always asking us on Monday what the Maker Friday activity will be that week.
