Stairs Built by Geometry in Construction Students Help Elementary Students

Students in the Geometry in Construction class used their knowledge of slope and dimension to design and build four sets of small stairs for ES students. The sophomores and seniors placed the stairs in the bathrooms at the ES so younger students are better able to reach and use the soap dispensers.

This is the second year that the MS/HS has conducted a Geometry in Construction class that teaches students how to take math concepts and apply them to real-world problems to create solutions. Students worked in pairs and small groups to create prototypes that met the dimension requirements in each bathroom. The class had to determine how many steps were needed and what would be a safe model to hold a young student's weight when in use. They also had to find a design that was easy to replicate. The stairs project was completed in approximately three weeks. Once the stairs were constructed, students sanded and painted the finished pieces.

"Last year, students constructed stairs, but because the one-man shelter we worked on as the final project was a single floor unit, we couldn't use them," said math teacher Russ Albright. "While building stairs helped them use their knowledge of geometry to build something tangible, students were disappointed that they couldn't be used by anyone. This year's class was really excited to work on a project that helps other students."

The Geometry in Construction students are able to use the time spent working on service projects in class towards the graduation requirement of community service hours. "I like doing something for others," said senior Paige Brimacomb. "I would like to see more opportunities for students to work on projects that affect the community."

Once sophomore Richard Webster learned that the class was being offered for the 2017-18 school year, he was excited, knowing how successful last year's class was in building a shelter for Second Wind Cottages in Ithaca, NY. "I was immediately in - I knew exactly what course I wanted to take this year," said Richard. "Taking this class has paid off for me. I'm doing much better in geometry; it's helping my GPA. This is one of those courses that you can already see how you're going to use what you're learning. I hope this course stays around." Sophomore Gianna Grathouse agrees with the practical applications the course offers. "I've already been doing some of the carpentry work I've learned around my house," she said. "It makes me think about going into the construction field as a career path." The class traveled to Alfred State College last semester to participate in Careers in Construction Day, which gave students insight into what career options there are in this field.

Overall, students agreed that they like the chance to work together as a small team and feel good about how their work is helping others. They would also recommend this class to other students. As one student said, "A math day in this class is better than a regular math class, but building days are the best - something we all look forward to."

Superintendent's Message

Dear Holley School Community,

For the last two months, I have had the honor of serving as the Interim Superintendent of the Holley Central School District. In that time, I have had the opportunity to meet many teachers, visit many classrooms, and work with dedicated administrators and support staff, along with your committed Board of Education members. Most importantly, I have been able to see Holley students in their classrooms engaged in meaningful learning activities. Whether the class is a Pre-K one sharing their knowledge of vocabulary, a third grade class where students are explaining why they choose to use division to find an answer, or a high school social studies class preparing arguments defending their nation's involvement in a conflict, I have seen students leading learning activities with their peers.

My career started in the 1970s in the Rochester City School District as an elementary and special education teacher. In the 1990s, I moved to Pittsford and retired from there as the Assistant Superintendent for Human Resources. Since that time, I have served in interim roles in area districts and been involved in professional learning for administrators, teachers and other school supervisors. Each new role has added to my admiration for the hard work educators and support staff engage in each day to provide for our students.

A memory I will take with me from the Holley community is the sense of caring that is exhibited here every day by the individuals who serve students and their families. As I walk the halls of the Middle School/High School and Elementary School, and stop in to classes to watch instruction, that caring atmosphere is palpable. It is displayed in casual conversations with teachers, staff and students. It is displayed by the excellent condition of your school facilities and the sense of pride about the physical plant. It is displayed in the professional conversations among administrators and teachers about students. It is displayed by the work of board members who freely give of their time to set the direction for the district.

Thank you for sharing your school community with me during the months of January and February. I wish Bob D'Angelo a speedy recovery, and I wish you all the best going forward. Go Hawks!

John Schiess
Interim Superintendent of Schools

Spino Foundation Gives Young Students Free Books

by Tim Artessa, ES Assistant Principal

The Scott Spino Foundation, Inc. recently delivered free books to Holley Elementary. Pre-K and kindergarten students are the recipients of the free books, which are distributed by Holley Elementary Student Council members each month. The older students pair up with the Pre-K and kindergarten students to read a story from the new delivery of books each month, and then the younger students bring the books home to add to their at home reading library. The program does a wonderful job of fostering a love of reading early on, as well as encouraging our students to read at home with their loved ones.

This is the fifth year that the Spino Foundation has chosen Holley Elementary for their book distribution program. The foundation is named after Scott Spino, who was a Rochester city school teacher and coach until he was killed by a drunk driver in 2004. Spino's family created the foundation to carry on his mission of making a difference in communities and the lives of children through education. The book distribution program helps them accomplish this by increasing student access to literature, reading skills and home library collections.

In 2017, the Spino Foundation also received clothing items that were handmade and donated by the Angels of Mercy. The Spino Foundation, in turn, donated these items to Holley ES. These items were included as part of the donations for the annual Holley Days of Shopping event. This enabled the community to receive the gift of warm clothing this past holiday season.

We are very appreciative of the Spino Foundation, and we look forward to working with them for many years to come!

Benefit Game for Ronald McDonald House on March 2

by Penny Cole, Varsity Cheerleading Coach

Holley cheerleaders will host a benefit game for the Ronald McDonald House Charities (RMHC) of Rochester, NY on Friday, March 2, at Holley MS/HS at 7 p.m. Holley faculty members will play in a basketball game against Orleans County law enforcement members. The faculty team is coached by Holley ES teacher and Varsity Boys' Basketball Coach Wil Prince, and the law enforcement team is coached by Orleans County Sheriff Randy Bower. Admission to the game is $2 for adults and $1 for students. Basket and 50/50 raffle tickets will be for sale during the game.

RMHC is a wonderful home away from home for families that have children in the hospital with critical illnesses and injuries. RMHC asks for $10 a night from families, but no one is ever turned away due to inability to pay. RMHC offers families a peaceful place to rest, a chance to eat home-cooked meals and free use of internet services.

The Holley cheerleading team has supported RMHC for several years because of the amazing things they do for families. This past summer, one of our cheerleaders was injured in an explosion and hospitalized for five days. A representative from RMHC came to her room immediately and offered their services to her family. We had the opportunity to see first-hand how effective RMHC is in helping the families of hospitalized patients.

All of the monies raised at this event will go to RMHC. Our goal each year is to increase the amount we raise from the previous year. We invite all of you to come out, enjoy a fun game and help raise money for this amazing house!

The Future of Football at Holley

by Dan Courtney, Athletic Director

What is the future of Holley football? It's no secret that enrollment in our district has been slowly declining, leading to numbers dipping into the 20s for our football program. A few years ago, we had to cancel the junior varsity season, and we have not regained the numbers to revive it. Declining numbers on football rosters has impacted all of Section V, NYS and the nation. Low numbers are perceived to be a combination of declining enrollment and fears of potential injury.

However, it is my goal to continue to provide Holley students with the opportunity to participate in a football program. I have been exploring many possibilities and see the best option for our students, district and community as eight-man football. Eight-man football is real football that will be played on the same 100 x 53.3 yard field with eight players on each side. You still have to run, pass, tackle, block, kick and do everything they do in an 11-man game. Eight-man football also has a lower percentage of injuries and concussions.

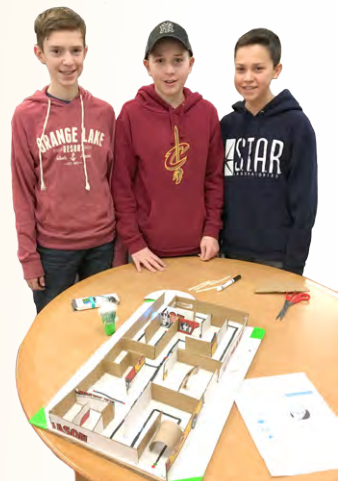

Multiple small schools across Section V have been exploring the eight-man model to keep football alive. Based on my observations, I suspect that Section V will offer an eight-man football division for the 2018 season and when they do, I would like to see Holley participate in it. Section V will be following the successful model implemented by Section 3 (in the Syracuse area) last fall.

I feel Holley is a perfect fit for eight-man football. Football has the potential to make a positive difference in kids' futures and I want to make sure we are still providing that opportunity. The number of players on the field will not change the experience or growth that we strive to see in our student-athletes.

Tech Students Learn to Code

by Lisa Osur, MS/HS Library Media Specialist

Last month, Tim Roger's eighth grade tech classes had a great time learning to code Ozobots with Lisa Osur in the MS/HS Library. Ozobots are mini-robots that follow color-coded paths and can slow down, speed up, zig-zag and do so much more. The Ozobot set (18 Ozobots) was borrowed from Monroe 2 -Orleans BOCES. The set allowed each student to use one Ozobot and explore what they can do individually and in teams. Students were tasked with creating a "playground" to showcase what they learned about coding. After being given a variety of materials to design with, students went to town! They were incredibly engaged and creative.

Music Students Participate in All-County Performance

by Sally Martin, ES Music Teacher

The Holley Elementary Chorus, Middle School Band and High School Chorus participated in the All-County Concert on Saturday, Feb. 3, at Kendall Junior/Senior High School. Their first rehearsal together with students from other Orleans County schools was on Friday, Feb. 2, where they worked with guest conductors to fine-tune the pieces they performed the next day. Students received the music in advance and practiced their parts on their own. The two-day event gave students a chance to interact with other performers from Albion, Kendall, Lyndonville and Medina schools, who may or may not sing the same parts or play the same instruments that they do. It also provided the opportunity for students to learn from another music teacher about how to tackle new material, participate in a large band or chorus, and acquire new skills and techniques from their fellow musicians.

The Elementary Chorus was so excited to participate that they held their own rehearsal on Friday as soon as they arrived at Kendall.

Holley Central Schools recognizes Students of the Month in grades K-12. Elementary students are nominated from each classroom, and middle and high school students are nominated in each subject area, all on a monthly basis. Each student receives a certificate with their photo on it and the nomination from their teacher written on it. The certificates are also displayed in the glass display case outside the MS/HS Library and then filed in a binder in the MS/HS Main Office. Pictures of the elementary students are displayed in the hallway near the Elementary Library and archived in a binder in the library.

Once each month, students of the month from grades K-12 have breakfast together with the principals in the Elementary Caf e or MS/HS Dining Hall (location rotates monthly). Breakfast is supplied by Food Service Director Vickie Scroger and her cafeteria staff.
